ABOUT

andrw's practice of making can best be categorized as multifaceted. Their expressions have been within the public realm for nearly twenty years, finding their first footing in the local punk and hardcore scenes. They have played in numerous punk and punk adjacent bands while exploring the subsets of art that lend themselves to the genre; leading to the exploration of DIY culture: autodidact philosophy, audio recording, zines, stenciling, and print making

Self-educated in guitar, bass, drums, keys, accordion, composition, somatic vibrations, audio engineering, and programming they release sounds that know no boundaries in genre or convention employing elements of black metal, drone, improvisation, indie rock, anti folk, field recordings, and noise.

andrw studied experimental writing, literary theory, and cultural anthropology at Indiana University of Pennsylvania, graduating in 2014.

andrw is the author of a novella, a book of absurdist lines and cat illustrations, a collection of short stories, an audio book backed by atmospheric noise, a collection of works from 2013-2017, three poetry chapbooks, and a brief zine on culinary instruction.

andrw's visual works continue to follow the theme of personal study, and work together or apart from the following in analog: graphic design, painting, drawing, three-dimensional collage, and electronic engineering; and in digital: drawings, paintings, and design. Their visual work can be found on clothing, album covers, book covers, commissioned prints, and originals.

Their drawings and multi-dimensional works have been exhibited as a part of Pittsburgh's Unblurred & Art All Night Series.

Since seeking treatment for addiction and BPD in 2016, andrw has seen to incorporating therapeutic elements of mindfulness and modes of trauma navigation into their interdisciplinary work.

andrw continues to write and make drawings, paintings, assemblage, philosophical street art, audio recordings, and electronic noise makers on a regular basis to continually navigate the absurdity of existence. Their curated body of solo exhibitions, publications, and audio releases as well as select collaborative works are catalogued in their curriculum vitae.
